

WINE ADVENTURES IN SALON-DE-PROVENCE

On the wine trail of Salon-de-Provence, many traditional, family-owned estates roll out the red, white, and rosé carpet to visitors seeking to relish this precious nectar, first cultivated 2,000 years ago just a few kilometers from here. Since then, Provence has developed its vineyards extensively, with many cellars and estates producing wine, exporting it to all continents and welcoming visitors to discover this exquisite beverage.

Salon-de-Provence was awarded the national label "Vignobles et Découvertes" in March 2023, for a 3-year period. This label aims to promote all wine tourism activities around Salon-de-Provence. It also helps to more easily organize visitors' stays and guide them towards carefully selected, high-quality services.

This guide allows you to discover this new wine tourism destination in Provence, starting from Salon-de-Provence, which spans 16 municipalities and brings together 75 partners including wineries, hotels, restaurants, heritage sites, leisure activities and more. All these partners can be recognized thanks to the sign displayed at the entrance to their establishment.

TASTE OF THE ALPILLES

Here, the sunlight makes the mouth water. For centuries, vineyards and olive groves have vied for its benefits. And the evidence is clear: since the beginning of time, they have intertwined for what seems like an endless day, with the dazzling brilliance of the limestone range of the Mistral-swept Alpilles on the horizon. It is only natural that these wines are refined, reflecting the character of this wild, luminous, powerful terroir.

Through a sustainable approach, with minimal human intervention and handpicked grapes, each wine reflects the quality and unique character of this terroir. IGP ALPILLES

History & geography

The Vin de Pays des Alpilles (literally 'Alpilles country wine') first officially recognized as a vin de pays in 2000, obtained its IGP (Protected Geographical Indication) label in 2009. However, grape growing here dates back to the beginning of our era, a time when it flourished under the influence of the Romans, who were already enthusiasts of fine wine.

Colors & flavors

The red wines are full-bodied and fruity, spicy and peppery, perfect for a tagine or a stew.

The smooth, balanced white wines are great for an aperitif or served with fish. Produced in relatively limited quantities, ney are highly sought after.

Style & personality

The vineyards of this beautiful landscape, nestled between the Durance River to the north and the Alpilles mountain range to the south, benefit from a mild Mediterranean temperate climate abundant in Mistral winds and sunlight. Their stony soils, composed of limestone and schist, provide the ideal terroir for regional grape varieties - including Grenache, Cinsault, Syrah, and Carignan for red wines, and Clairette and Ugni for whites - to flourish.

AOP LES BAUX-DE-PROVENCE

History & geography

This AOP (In English, PDO, for 'Protected Designation of Origin') established in 1995 boasts 100% organic, sustainable or biodynamic farming practices and soils. These figures testify to the wine growers' commitment to protecting the land they work on, a strip spanning 30 kilometers and covering the northern and southern slopes of the Alpilles massif.

Style & personality

With its typically Mediterranean climate, its regular Mistral wind that shields from cold and rain, its dazzling light, and its unique soil, composed of scree or lithified sand, this wine growing region benefits from ideal weather conditions. It spans 6 municipalities, including Les Baux-de-Provence, a perched village renowned as one of the most beautiful in France. Its main grape varieties are Grenache, Mourvèdre, Syrah, and Cinsault.

Colors & flavors

The red wines of AOP Les Baux-de-Provence are full-bodied and balanced with a hint of spices and the garrique scrubland.

The rosé wines are balanced with fruity notes.

The white wines (only 7% of the total produced) are made under the Coteaux d'Aix-en-Provence appellation.

IGP PAYS DES BOUCHES-DU-RHÔNE

History & geography

A magnificent vineyard stretching from Aix-en-Provence to the wetlands of Camargue and the Mediterranean Sea. First recognized as a vin de pays in 1968, the "Pays des Bouches-du-Rhône" IGP (Protected Geographical Indication) was awarded its official label in 2009. Wines from its southernmost part can also bear the «Terre de Camarque» Territorial label.

Style & personality

Enjoying mild winters and dry summers characteristic of the region's Mediterranean climate, the wine from this relatively lesser-known region proves to be of high-quality, whether in red, rosé or white. Moreover, in the 15th century, the "good King René," Count of Provence and esthete, had a flair for all things wine. His personal vineyard near the gates of Aix-en-Provence was highly renowned and played a significant role in the development of rosé wine.

Colors & flavors

The red wines have bold personality without any harshness, featuring soft, round tannins and a pleasant mouthfeel. They pair wonderfully with game stews.

16

The rosés show a beautiful pale color, with an expressive nose of red fruits or citrus. Delightfully fresh on the palate, perfect for an aperitif.

The whites, with their beautiful yellow hue and green highlights, are consistent and balanced. Some can even be aged for longer periods.

First known as "Portes de la Méditerranée," then "Vin de Pays de la Méditerranée," and finally becoming the IGP (Protected Geographical Indication) "Méditerranée" in 2009, these wines thrive across ten French départements (counties) spread between the Auvergne-Rhône-Alpes, Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur, and Corsica regions, and have recently surged in popularity.

With nearly 400 wineries and 10,500 hectares of vineyards, this IGP (the largest in the southeastern part of France) offers a true mosaic of identities and territories: from the Hautes-Alpes to the coastal calangues, via the Luberon Massif, no fewer than a hundred grape varieties coexist and blend. Hence, winemakers are given considerable freedom in creating unique red, white and rosé wines.

IGP MEDITERRANÉE

The red, white and rosé wines of IGP Méditerranée have one thing in common: all are the fruit of freedom and light. Freed from the customs and beliefs associated with traditional wine consumption, they are uncorked on every occasion, blending playfulness with celebration. Among the still visible remains from this period are the vestiges of the Temple of Diana (from -30 to -20 BC), listed as historical monuments, as well as an ancient artisanal zone dedicated to textiles, weaving, and fabric dyes. There is also a medieval sanctuary dedicated to St. Césaire on the estate, testifying to the rich history spanning over 2,000 years. Nonetheless, the vineyard remains firmly rooted in reality. Since 2010, Château Bas has been producing wines bearing the official "Organic Farming" label. AOP COTEAUX D'AIX-EN-PROVENCE

History & geography

The westernmost wines of Provence are made from the Durance River to the Mediterranean Sea, and from the Rhône Valley in the west to Sainte-Victoire Mountain in the east. It is safe to say that these vineyards provided a tremendous source of inspiration for the great painter Cézanne.

These landscapes also inspire the creativity of the 79 winemakers who craft this AOP so typical of the Aix-en-Provence region, all meeting the same guality standards.

Style & personality

If we combine the benefits of the abundant sunlight, protection from the Mistral wind, the mild winters and the overall clement weather, we obtain a particularly generous Mediterranean climate conducive to crafting exceptional wines. Blending various grape varieties (Grenache, Sauvignon, Bourboulenc, Clairette and others) allows the winemakers to develop a distinct character pleasing to the palates of those who enjoy new sensations. The main grape varieties used are Grenache, Mourvèdre, Syrah and Cinsault.

Colors & flavors

Overall, the red wines are full-bodied and tend to become sweeter over time. With less oaky flavor and more fruity notes, they offer refined aromatic finesse.

The rosés show off a range of varied, deep pink hues. Light, fruity and pleasant, they are best enjoyed while young.

The dry, mellow white wines are also fresh and aromatic, with a wide palette of colors.

What a pleasure to lose yourself in landscapes, sensations, accents and beautiful sensory experiences in Provence! A journey for the taste buds you can continue at one of the restaurants selected here for you. From more traditional regional fare to more creative high-end bistro cuisine, earthly delights await you, and no matter where your steps may lead you, your palate will always be in celebration mode. You see, here in Provence, the chefs have chosen to make the seasons, local produce and their generous instincts their main ingredients.

Exploring Provence is like leaping feet-first into history and strolling from one millennial site or prestigious, symbolic monument to another. It also allows visitors to get a close-up look at the preserved tradition of the most beautiful gems in Provence's cultural heritage. A living legacy that remains a testament to our love for heritage and family sagas. In short, starting from Salon-de-Provence, where the city's ancestral soap factories carry the sweet scent of tradition, you can quench your thirst for all types of history whichever route you take.

CHÂTEAU DE L'EMPÉRI

While there is an admission fee to visit the collections, you can access the castle's inner courtvards and the terrace - which offer an impressive view of the city - for free. From 13 May to 17 September, open from Wednesday to Monday from 10:00 AM to 12:30 PM and from 2:00 PM to 6:00 PM. Closed on Tuesdays.
